this book explores the points of convergence between corporate capitalist and terrorist practice assessing an increase in the number of terrorist attacks directed at commercial entities in urban areas with an emphasis on the shopping mall in general and nairobi's westgate mall in particular suzi mirgani offers a fascinating and disturbing perspective on the spaces where the most powerful forces of contemporary culture the most mainstream and the most extreme meet on common ground this volume is an eclectic mix of applications of monte carlo methods in many fields of research should not be surprising because of the ubiquitous use of these methods in many fields of human endeavor in an attempt to focus attention on a manageable set of applications the main thrust of this book is to emphasize applications of monte carlo simulation methods in biology and medicine since the construction of the first fully enclosed shopping center in 1952 the shopping mall has evolved into the heart of many suburban areas across the united states more than simply a place to purchase goods this veritable temple of consumerism has become a primary place for community and social interaction and an essential element in many citizens day to day lives this study explores the spiritual emotional and physical effects of the enclosed shopping mall on the public chronicling the growth of the mall its role in shaping urban and suburban life its positive and negative impacts on society and the environment and its future viability as this work shows the mall remains rich in symbolic influence and in many ways mirrors the american condition

a gripping account of how the automobile has failed nyc and how mass transit and a revitalized streetscape are vital to its post pandemic recovery in 1969 as all students of new york city history think they have learned master builder robert moses lost his long battle to urbanist jane jacobs over his planned lower manhattan expressway the ten lane elevated expressway would have sliced across soho and little italy demolishing historic buildings and displacing thousands of families and businesses jacobs and her neighbors defeated moses and as a result new york became the only major american city with no interstate highway running through its core like many global cities though new york had spent fifty years during the first half of the twentieth century trying and failing to tame its heavily populated landscape to fit the private automobile new york has now spent more than fifty years trying to undo those mistakes wresting back city space for people not cars movement new york s long war to take back its streets from the car chronicles the earlier less known battles that preceded the cancellation of the lower manhattan expressway jacobs became an example for generations of urban planners but whose example did jacobs emulate in an earlier victory that saved washington square park moses may serve handily as new york s uber villain now but who before him was responsible for destroying a critical part of new york s transit system a well respected urban writer who has focused on new york s transportation system for more than a decade author nicole gelinas resumes the story where robert caro s landmark the power broker ended movement explores how in the half century leading up to the covid 19 pandemic new york s re embracement of its mass transit system and a livable streetscape helped save the city gelinas tackles the 1970s environmental movement the 1980s rebuilding of the subways and more contemporary battles from mayor bloomberg s push for more pedestrian plazas and bike lanes in the early 2000s to transportation advocates protests to prevent traffic deaths in the mayor de blasio era of the 2010s to how new york s stewardship of its streets and subways have played a critical role during the 2020 pandemic and subsequent recovery introducing a cast of transportation heroes to rival jane jacobs shirley hayes hazel henderson richard ravitch nilka martell and puncturing the myth of moses as new york s anti hero movement explores how new york city has helped redefine what it means to be a global city not a place that is easy to drive through but a place where people can take transit walk and bike to work to school or just for fun research paper postgraduate from the year 2015 in the subject business economics operations research grade 2 5 course phd language english abstract the purpose of this research is to bridge the gap between retail research results on customer movement in shopping centers and importance of space syntax analysis in predicting indoor navigation pattern for better understanding of store space allocation store location and tenanting decision making in shopping malls a bid rent model is specified and solved under the condition of profit maximization of individual stores to examine the impact of customer density in predicting store space allocation and rental decision making to predict the importance of visibility in customer density distribution data were collected through recording navigational preferences of individuals in computer generated situations of shopping mall junctions using a convenience sampling method the visibility characteristics were studied using visibility graph analysis by syntax 2d software tools the model is extended under condition of revenue maximization of the entire mall in rationalizing tenanting decision making tenanting rent and store space allocation decisions depend on the customer density distribution throughout the shopping mall natural movement and consequent natural customer density depend on the visual integration of a location along with metric distance from the access point revenue maximization of the shopping mall depends on the strategic positioning of different store types the positioning of different stores in turn depends on the spatial configuration which dictates natural customer density distribution this paper being the first of its kind integrates retail research wisdom and syntactic measures to illustrate the efficacy of space design as a strategic decision making tool instead of just an accommodator of functions research paper postgraduate from the year 2016 in the subject art architecture history of construction grade 2 5 indian institute of engineering science and technology shibpur indian institute of engineering science and technology language english abstract organized retail formats are growing twice as fast as their traditional counterparts but in spite of that the mall management is concerned about the rising rate of vacancy leading to economic unsustainability the reason for high mall vacancy rates can be ascribed to faulty tenant placement and irrational rental plan existing studies on the tenant mix decisions focus more on inter store externality and not on the spatial logic moreover normal industry practice follows rule of thumb instead of any scientific approach a bid rent model for profit maximization of individual stores is solved to identify the relationship between area allocation and rental decision with the customer density at that point the customer density in turn depends on the accessibility and explained through visibility graph analysis and agent based simulation the findings support the superiority of configurational characteristic over metric distances a model for profit maximization of the entire shopping mall is proposed to explain the tenanting rental and anchor rent subsidization decisions based on logic of spatial configuration space planning in this way can be considered as a tool for strategic decision making instead of an accommodator of functions
