although there are many studies of certain individual ancient italic groups e g the etruscans gauls and latins there is no work that takes a comprehensive view of each of them the famous and the less well known that existed in iron age and roman italy moreover many previous studies have focused only on the material evidence for these groups or on what the literary sources have to say about them this handbook is conceived of as a resource for archaeologists historians philologists and other scholars interested in finding out more about italic groups from the earliest period they are detectable early iron age in most instances down to the time when they begin to assimilate into the roman state in the late republican or early imperial period as such it will endeavor to include both archaeological and historical perspectives on each group with contributions from the best known or up and coming archaeologists and historians for these peoples and topics the language of the volume is english but scholars from around the world have contributed to it this volume covers the ancient peoples of italy more comprehensively in individual chapters and it is also distinct because it has a thematic section the backbone of the roman army was the infantry armed with a javelin or pilum and sword or gladius this study investigates not just the weapon itself and its design and manufacture but how the sword was originally conceived and how it was employed on the battlefield as an expression of the roman state the authors start examining the early swords employed across the italian peninsula during the bronze age and how these evolved into the gladius which itself changed in the period of monarchy with the introduction of the cross hilt during rome s consular period the gladius changed again and over time both the length of the blade and its width were altered relying exclusively on historical and archaeological evidence the roman gladius and the ancient fighting techniques shows how the roman army developed into a highly disciplined body and how fundamental the gladius was to its method of fighting it also shows how the combat techniques of the romans evolved as did those of their enemies the training methods and tactics of the roman infantry are fully explored and its performance at some of the great battles of the monarchical and consular periods are examined as the area under roman rule fluctuated with victory or defeat for the roman people the gladius was the object that better than any other showed their identity since it was a weapon that accompanied the history of the roman people from its earliest days changing in shape and design as it was adapted to the varying social political and military needs the roman gladius and the ancient fighting techniques is the most comprehensive study of this hugely important weapon which also provides the reader with a complete overview of roman society which in this first volume is treated until the end of the consular period the book is richly illustrated throughout with drawings and photographs of original weapons and equipment this volume is the product of a theoretical archaeology group tag conference session held at lampeter wales in december 2003 entitled mentalités and identities in motion included here are all the papers held there and more besides the session centred on the role of past ways of thinking feeling and acting in social transformation and exploring past worldviews as instead of being relegated to the fictional or anecdotal an integral part of every aspect of human life not just explicit contexts of power struggles and domination but also approachable from the material evidence the contributions are widely spread across space and time ranging from northern ireland to sicily from france to bulgaria and covering almost every period from the mesolithic to the thirty years war on top of this they are also very different in methodology in the ways they have interpreted the session title and approached their evidence before rushing headlong into this kaleidoscopic mix then it is worth briefly explaining the rationale behind the session title and the selection and arrangement of papers
