afro asian connections in latin america and the caribbean explores the connections between people of asian and african descent in latin america and the caribbean although their journeys started from different points of origin spanning two separate oceans their point of contact in this hemisphere brought them together under a hegemonic system that would treat these seemingly disparate continental ancestries as one historically an overwhelming majority of people of african and asian descent were brought to the americas as sources of labor to uphold the plantation agrarian economies leading to complex relationships and interactions the contributions to this collection examine various aspects of these connections the authors bring to the forefront perspectives regarding history literature art and religion and engage how they are manifested in these afro asian relationships and interactions they investigate what has received little academic engagement outside the acknowledgement that there are groups who are of african and asian descent in regard to their relationships with the dominant europeanized center references to both groups typically only view them as singular entities what this interdisciplinary collection presents is a more cohesive approach that strives to place them at the center together and view their relationships in their historical contexts from the beat poets incarnation of the white negro through iron john and the men s movement to the paranoid masculinity of timothy mcveigh white men in this country have increasingly imagined themselves as victims in taking it like a man david savran explores the social and sexual tensions that have helped to produce this phenomenon beginning with the 1940s when many white middle class men moved into a rule bound corporate culture savran sifts through literary cinematic and journalistic examples that construct the white man as victimized feminized internally divided and self destructive savran considers how this widely perceived loss of male power has played itself out on both psychoanalytical and political levels as he draws upon various concepts of masochism the most counterintuitive of the so called perversions and the one most insistently associated with femininity savran begins with the writings and self mythologization of beat writers william burroughs allen ginsberg and jack kerouac although their independent law defying lifestyles seemed distinctively and ruggedly masculine their literary art and personal relations with other men in fact allowed them to take up social and psychic positions associated with women and racial minorities arguing that this dissident masculinity has become increasingly central to u s culture savran analyzes the success of sam shepard as both writer and star as well as the emergence of a new kind of action hero in movies like rambo and twister he contends that with the limited success of the civil rights and women s movements white masculinity has been reconfigured to reflect the fantasy that the white male has become the victim of the scant progress made by african americans and women taking it like a man provocatively applies psychoanalysis to history the willingness to inflict pain upon the self for example serves as a measure of men s attempts to take control of their situations and their ambiguous relationship to women discussing s m and sexual liberation in their historical contexts enables savran to consider not only the psychological function of masochism but also the broader issues of political and social power as experienced by both men and women in recent years members of legal law enforcement media and academic circles have portrayed rape as a special kind of crime distinct from other forms of violence in framing the rape victim carine m mardorossian argues that this differential treatment of rape has exacerbated the ghettoizing of sexual violence along gendered lines and has repeatedly led to women s being accused of triggering if not causing rape through immodest behavior comportment passivity or weakness contesting the notion that rape is the result of deviant behaviors of victims or perpetrators mardorossian argues that rape saturates our culture and defines masculinity's relation to femininity both of which are structural positions rather than biologically derived ones using diverse examples throughout mardorossian draws from hollywood film and popular culture to contemporary women's fiction and hospitalized birth emphasizing that the position of dominant masculinity can be occupied by men women or institutions while structural femininity is a position that may define and subordinate men minorities and other marginalized groups just as effectively as it does women highlighting the legacies of the politically correct debates of the 1990s and the terrorist attacks of 9/11 the book illustrates how the framing of the term victim has played a fundamental role in constructing notions of agency that valorize autonomy and support exclusionary especially masculine models of american selfhood the gendering of rape including by well meaning sometimes feminist voices that claim to have victims best interests at heart ultimately obscures its true role in our culture both a critical analysis and a call to action framing the rape victim shows that rape is not a special interest issue that pertains just to women but a pervasive one that affects our society as a whole
