this edited volume brings together debates from the global south and global east to explore alternatives to conventional planning in southern cities embracing the evolving post colonial theory the volume offers fragments of the urban that provide clues to the larger often repeated ontological question that continues to hold why and what does theory from the south mean the chapters derive from and speak to the simultaneously homogenous and heterogeneous south they focus on presenting the alternative realities of southern cities as critical analytical lenses that can build up to the theorisation of the southern urban with a potential to re understand the contemporary urban world the contributions explore locally rooted knowledge systems premised on social and cultural practices as possible conduits to evolving planning methods in doing so the volume breaks apart the linear modernity that urban theory from the north relies on chapters chapter 1 and chapter 11 are available open access under a creative commons attribution 4 0 international license via link springer.com

whilst recognising that distinctly different traditions exist within the study and practice of urban design this book advances an interdisciplinary and innovative approach which is of direct importance to understanding the urban forms conditions practices and processes it enthuses and inspires users who are grappling with urban design research problems but who need inspiration to move from idea to methodological approach through the work of 32 urban researchers from the arts sciences and social sciences it demonstrates a wide range of problems and approaches and shows how the diverse range of complementary approaches can come together to provide a holistic understanding to the design of cities while each of the contributors presents a particular approach to researching the field sometimes focusing centrally on particular research methodologies others cutting across methods or focusing on theory all include discussion of actual research projects to illustrate their application to real world problems this book will be valuable to everyone from the informed undergraduate student about to embark on their first dissertation to phd students and seasoned researchers immersed in methodological and conceptual complexity and wishing to compare available and appropriate methodological paths in many rapidly urbanizing countries in africa asia and latin america local politics undermines the effectiveness of urban planning politicians have incentives to ignore formal urban plans and sideline planners and instead provide urban land and services through informal channels in order to cultivate political constituencies a form of what political scientists refer to as clientelism this results in inequitable and environmentally damaging patterns of urban growth in some of the largest and most rapidly urbanizing countries in the world the technocratic planning solutions often advocated by governments and international development organizations are not enough to overcome this problem urban planners must understand and adapt to the complex politics of urban informality in this book chandan deuskar explores how politicians in developing democracies provide urban land and services to the urban poor in exchange for their political support demonstrates how this impacts urban growth and suggests innovative and practical ways in which urban planners can try to be more effective in this challenging political context he draws on literature from multiple disciplines urban planning political science sociology anthropology and others statistical analysis of global data on urbanization and an in depth case study of urban ghana urban planners and international development experts working in the global south as well as researchers educators and students of global urbanization will find urban planning in a world of informal politics informative and thought provoking
