this volume presents research from an international interdisciplinary and intersectoral research project in which 15 doctoral researchers explored a range of issues related to the life course experiences of children born of war in 20th century conflicts. Children born of war, children fathered by foreign soldiers and born to local mothers during and after armed conflicts have long been neglected in the research of the social consequences of war based on research projects completed under the auspices of the horizon2020 funded international and interdisciplinary research and training network chibow chibow org. This book examines the psychological and social impact of war on these children. It focusses on three separate but interrelated themes: firstly it explores methodological and ethical issues related to research with war affected populations in general and children born of war in particular; secondly it presents innovative historical research focussing specifically on geopolitical areas that have hitherto been unexplored and thirdly it addresses from a psychological and psychiatric perspective the challenges faced by children born of war in post conflict communities including stigmatisation discrimination within the significant context of identity formation when faced with contested memories of volatile post war experiences the book offers an insight into the social consequences of war for those children associated with the enemy by virtue of their direct biological link
