this text documents the economic development of east asian countries in order to highlight the beneficial techniques used to increase growth socialist and capitalist structures are discussed complete with an analysis of the future extent of interaction between east asian countries this is the work of an energetic scholar whose capacity to read digest and reflect on ideas in diverse domains of inquiry is probably unequaled in the field sue estroff author of making it crazy an important book charles leslie coeditor of paths to asian medical knowledge bassein examines the pervasive linkage between women's sexuality and death in western thought and literature and concludes that there is no reasonable basis for much of it she first explores how language reveals and reinforces the bond between women and death she then discusses traditional christianity as a vehicle for perpetuating this tie and demonstrates that negative attitudes and brutality associated with women find expression in otherwise commendable works of art the author examines nineteenth and twentieth century fiction and poetry to show the different ways writers have handled women in sexual situations bassein concludes that tracing the origins and prevalence of the automatic association and seeking alternatives help us recognize the irrational and unconscious tendencies that are at the basis of stereotype formation and tacit acceptance of brutality in this book wm blake tyrrell and larry j bennett examine sophocles antigone in the context of its setting in fifth century athens the authors attempt to create an interpretive environment that is true to the issues and interests of fifth century athenians as opposed to those of modern scholars and philosophers as they contextualize the play in the dynamics of ancient athens the authors discuss the text of the antigone in light of recent developments in the study of greek antiquity and tragedy and they turn to modern greek rituals of lamentation for suggestive analogies the result is a compelling book which opens new insights to the text challenges the validity of old problems and eases difficulties in its interpretation visions and prophecy offered medieval women one of the few pathways to authority in religious and in some cases political life the ecclesiastical doctrine of discretio spirituum was a means of testing whether visions were truly of divine origin the gift of revelation was not seen to make a woman less dangerous or ready to deceive and the conjunction of deceitful women and deceiving visions demanded stringent checks and controls by ecclesiastical authorities this book first explores discretio spirituum in the revelaciones of st bridget of sweden and suggests that bridget was clearly aware of the rules and eager to present her experiences as impeccably orthodox in contrast the ambivalent reception of margery kempe and her book is shown to be due to her inconsistent conformity to the doctrine the consequences of failure to conform could be severe marguerite porrete and joan of arc were burned at the stake ostensibly because their visions were deemed to be of demonic origin
