this book was written to venture beyond interpretations of cormac mccarthy s characters as simple antinomian and non psychological and of his landscapes as unrelated to the violent arcs of often orphaned and always emotionally isolated and socially detached characters as mccarthy usually eschews direct indications of psychology his landscapes allow us to infer much about their motivations the relationship of ambivalent nostalgia for domesticity to mccarthy s descriptions of space remains relatively unexamined at book length and through less theoretical application than close reading by including mccarthy s latest book this study offer the only complete study of all nine novels within mccarthy studies this book extends and complicates a growing interest in space and domesticity in his work the author combines a high regard for mccarthy s stylistic prowess with a provocative reading of how his own psychological habits around gender issues and family relations power books that only appear to be stories of masculine heroics expressions of misogynistic fear or antinomian rejections of civilized life this book opens a novel perspective on comics and literature interactions it claims that the two artistic media have always maintained a mutual emulation for as long as they have coexisted in media culture to demonstrate this the present research does not focus on literary adaptations in comics form but rather on a literary corpus that remains virtually unexplored comics related novels the purpose of this volume is to inventory french comics related novels and to study them within the limits of the french speaking world this book pieces together a literary history of bande dessinée through its novels from the nineteenth to twenty first centuries although the comic strip including the aptly named graphic novel has sometimes been regarded as the disciple of an unsurpassable literary model do these under studied adaptations in novel form not rather indicate a mutual relationship or even an emulation between the two media
