the relationship between modern international law and islamic law has raised many theoretical and practical questions that cannot be ignored in the contemporary study and understanding of both international law and islamic law the significance and relevance of this relationship in both academic and practical terms especially after the terrorist attacks of 11 september 2001 is now well understood recent international events in particular corroborate the need for a better understanding of the relationship between contemporary international law and islamic law and how their interaction can be explored and improved to enhance modern international relations and international law the articles reproduced in this volume examine the issues of general principles of international law international use of force international humanitarian law international terrorism international protection of diplomats international environmental and water law universality of human rights women s rights rights of the child rights of religious minorities and state practice the essays have been carefully selected to reflect as much as possible the different islamic perspectives on each of these aspects of international law this provocative study suggests that pater usually thought of as a florid prose stylist and second rate adjunct to the esthetic movement is in reality an articulate prophet of the twentieth century pater s work the book indicates shows a consistent concern with the transmission of humanism from one generation to the next through the medium of art the link in that transmission is the human image in a milieu the appearance of man as manifested in painting sculpture prose poetry or drama pater s fiction as well as his criticism strives to create a milieu extracting both what is unique and what is constant from that milieu his treatment of humanism has seemed introverted bizarre almost obsessional but he prefigured the concerns of such writers as joyce and yeats and his esthetic has become an accepted part of our mid twentieth century intellectual structure tim ingold has emerged as perhaps the most interesting theoretician of man environment relations this essay traces the intellectual history of the study of environmental perceptions and ingold s rejection of the notion that culture informs our perception of the environment through a critical review of this position the essay considers the strength and weaknesses of ingold s theoretical programme and analyzes the concept ontology of dwelling which signals ingold s break with a language centered epistemology and his links to heidegger s phenomenology cover essay from the year 2014 in the subject politics international politics topic public international law and human rights grade 62 merit uk system university college london school of public policy language english abstract in this essay i have focused on the very content of human rights thereby relating to the debate between universalist and cultural relativist theory while the former promotes the idea of equal rights for all human beings and considers culture irrelevant for the validity of moral rights the latter views culture as the exclusive source of moral rights donnelly 1984 400 and stresses that right and wrong differ from culture to culture tilley 2000 501 in the light of this debate i have argued that human rights are not merely western constructions as they withstand despite their historical and geographical significance accusations of cultural superiority tilley 2000 527 and of evaluations of other cultures according to the terms and conditions of western culture oxford dictionaries 2013 or in short of western ethnocentrism i have held this premise as response specifically to the allegation of cultural insensitivity brought forward by cultural relativism which emphasizes human rights ignorance towards cultural complexities by prioritizing some values over others thereby disregarding the collective spirit of some communities this is said to render the concept of human rights inapplicable in non western societies i have counter argued that the human rights conception is culturally sensitive as it recognizes diversity of moral views by promoting freedom of choice and the inclusion of voices otherwise left unheard under the umbrella of collectivism thereby i have shown that universal values can indeed be justified while cultural relativism fails to provide a sufficient explanation for moral validity in this respect i shall challenge the term culture and will show that human rights advocate t
