media education in asia is a relatively young but rapidly developing part of the curriculum research has been conducted and papers have been written on various issues concerning media education in asia the dominant models of media education in the world are broadly western and most are drawn from english speaking countries the question is whether a similar pattern exists in asia where there may be differences in culture heritage beliefs values education policy as well as curriculum and pedagogy are educators in asia following the western model in developing and implementing media education or are they devising their own models with this question in mind this book sets out to understand the prevailing perspectives regarding media education in various asian societies while most debates about media education are carried out in western contexts this book hopes to provide a platform for readers to examine this issue in an asian context this book emerged from the online project a manifesto for media education and takes forward its starting points by asking some of the original contributors to expand upon their view of the purpose of media education and to support their perspective with accounts of practice this study explores the media education systems in south asia looking not just at the heavy disruption of the covid 19 pandemic but also the long standing digital inequalities and unequal socioeconomic opportunities that lead to reduced access to devices technology and digital media with a focus on eight south asian countries afghanistan bangladesh bhutan india maldives nepal pakistan and sri lanka the chapters examine the adoption of technology for pedagogical purposes during the pandemic and the underlying socioeconomic reasons behind difficulties in implementing such rapid digital transformation in the region the authors then consider how we can draw from the performance of south asian media education institutions already suffering from various digital divides during the covid 19 pandemic to apply these lessons to the broader academic community with contributions from an international team of authors this book will interest students scholars and policymakers around the world working in the areas of media literacy education studies digital media global development and sociology introduces readers to media who creates it and why straightforward text and clear photographs gives readers the tools needed to evaluate and understand all types of media includes a hands on activity related to media literacy technology plus classroom can equal success for students this invaluable resource for teachers presents classroom applications of media technology and the internet in the age of social media fake news and data driven capitalism the need for critical understanding is more urgent than ever half baked ideas about media literacy will lead us nowhere we need a comprehensive and coherent educational approach we all need to think critically about how media work how they represent the world and how they are produced and used in this manifesto leading scholar david buckingham makes a passionate case for media education he outlines its key aims and principles and explores how it can and should be updated to take account of the changing media environment concise authoritative and forcefully argued the media education manifesto is essential reading for anyone involved in media and education from scholars and practitioners to students and their parents beyond technology offers a challenging new analysis of learning young people and digital media disputing both utopian fantasies about the transformation of education and exaggerated fears about the corruption of childhood innocence it offers a level headed analysis of the impact of these new media on learning drawing on a wide range of critical research buckingham argues that there is now a growing divide between the media rich world of childrens lives outside school and their experiences of technology in the classroom bridging this divide he suggests will require more than superficial attempts to import technology into schools or to combine education with digital entertainment while debunking such fantasies of technological change buckingham also provides a constructive alternative arguing that young people need to be equipped with a new form of digital literacy that is both critical and creative beyond technology will be essential reading for all students of the media or education as well as for teachers and other education professionals
