diploma thesis from the year 2007 in the subject business economics investment and finance grade 1 0 european business school international university schlo reichartshausen oestrich winkel language english abstract in a time of tremendous advances in technology it seems striking why the location of corporate headquarters should matter for the firm s stock return at first glance low information and communication costs are thought to facilitate the interaction between market participants all around the world and thus deem the role of geographical location as marginal this reasoning however does not take investors behavior into account even if over the past decades international capital markets have widely been liberalized and the variety of investment opportunities across countries has grown substantially many investors do not take the risk reduction potential of foreign assets into consideration despite the extensive benefits of international diversification investors still over weight domestic and local assets in their portfolios although this home bias has drawn much academic attention and its existence is commonly accepted a satisfactory rationale could not yet be obtained further the resulting economic implications for asset pricing remain unexplored yet locality could be highly relevant for cost of capital calculation asset allocation and performance evaluation 1 as a result it is of crucial importance to investigate the relationship between portfolio holdings of investors and stock pricing patterns to shed light on a potential geographical component of asset pricing the lack of academic research motivates to explore this area in greater detail the purpose of this thesis is to fill the existing gap and establish a link between local bias and asset pricing therefore a detailed overview of the home bias puzzle as well as of local asset pricing is presented the economic impact of local bias on stock returns is empirically this new international edition provides increased coverage of the procedures for estimating the cost of capital expanded coverage of risk management techniques and the use and misuse of derivatives and additional coverage of agency problems
