at the turn of the twenty first century manipulation of the democratic process coupled with preexisting political and economic grievances led to years long civil wars in sierra leone liberia and cote d ivoire during and after these conflicts international peacekeeping efforts and humanitarian intervention became the dominant paths for restoring stability by rebuilding the state using these three countries as case studies this manuscript sheds light on internationally driven state building in war torn west african nations the problematic nature of the postcolonial state and the difficulties of securing its people s wellbeing connecting peace and conflict democracy and international development studies bah and emmanuel argue that there is a clear nexus between the concepts and practices of peace building and statebuilding that peace building and statebuilding are not domestic matters alone but also matters of global intervention and that civil wars can be viewed as opportunities for state building through creative postwar partnerships and organization this study goes beyond the familiar concepts of failed states r2p peacekeeping and peace mediation and introduces and enhances the concepts of state decay new humanitarianism people centered liberalism and institutional design in doing so it provides critical lessons that local and international actors can draw on as they try to figure out practical solutions to the political economic and social problems that impede the development of peaceful and democratic multiethnic postcolonial states in africa and beyond applying comparative historical methods and theory to archival materials and expert interviews international statebuilding in west africa seeks to shift the discourse on civil wars from their causes and implications to the opportunities they provide to rework failed states and to shift the discourse on african states from their colonial and neocolonial legacies to their shared moral and security interests with the rest of the world this book aims to examine the conditions under which the decision to use force can be reckoned as legitimate in international relations drawing on communicative action theory it provides a provocative answer to the hotly contested question of how to understand the legitimacy of the use of force in international politics the use of force is one of the most critical and controversial aspects of international politics scholars and policy makers have long tried to develop meaningful standards capable of restricting the use of force to a legally narrow yet morally defensible set of circumstances however these standards have recently been challenged by concerns over how the international community should react to gross human rights abuses or to terrorist threats this book argues that current legal and moral standards on the use of force are unable to effectively deal with these challenges the author argues that the concept of deliberative legitimacy understood as the non coerced commitment of an actor to abide by a decision reached through a process of communicative action offers the most appropriate framework for addressing this problem the theoretical originality and empirical value of the concept of deliberative legitimacy comes fully into force with the examination of two of the most severe international crises from the post cold war period the 1999 nato intervention in kosovo and the 2003 us military action against iraq this book will be of much interest to students of international security ethics international law discourse theory and ir corneliu bjola is sshrc postdoctoral fellow with the centre for ethics at the university of toronto and has a phd in international relations the exploitation of superior us systems for the collection analysis and distribution of information currently undermines us leadership in the context of transatlantic crisis management the usa s clear lead in information technology creates political liabilities with respect to both allies and adversaries while political technical tradeoffs warrant a more open approach to information systems information production and information sharing among allies clearly distinguishing the role of information in winning wars versus managing crises this book extends existing models for how breakdowns occur in international bargaining allies who share preferences but not the resolve of a coalition leader are brought into the explanation for war as a rational outcome of incomplete information case studies ranging from cold war berlin to the war in iraq illustrate how national classified systems that underwrite large margins of victory in conventional combat fail to inspire trust among allies during the crucial preceding stage of crisis bargaining the volume offers powerful arguments for a new direction in defence transformation uses the tools of political legal moral and historical analysis to describe a just return process for repatriating refugees civil wars and internal conflicts pose the greatest threat to international peace and security in the twenty first century nowhere is this problem more acute than in east asia and the pacific which has far more of its share of such conflicts unraveling internal conflicts in east asia and the pacific incidence consequences and resolution edited by jacob bercovitch and karl derouen jr is a book of originally commissioned essays on civil wars which provide a compelling area of inquiry many of the asia pacific region s wars are very long such as in myanmar some tend to recur also in myanmar some involve religion philippines thailand and some aceh bougainville east timor of the longest have ended in the last few years in short the region presents a variety of interesting dynamics that merit close attention in one volume the aim of unraveling internal conflicts in east asia and the pacific is to provide an original look at these civil wars the unique feature of the book is that it brings a variety of perspectives together into one volume bercovitch and derouen jr do this in four sections the first titled security and internal conflicts in the region is an overview of conflict and conflict management in the region section two is called features of conflict in the region here the authors cover conflict contours including intractability conflict resolution recurrence and islam section three external involvement in regional conflicts focuses on third party intervention in regional conflicts the individual chapters cover mediation peacekeeping and other forms of third party involvement the final section ties the chapters together unraveling internal conflicts in east asia and the pacific incidence consequences and resolution edited by jacob bercovitch and karl derouen jr provides a fresh and comprehensive look at conflict in the part of the world where internal conflict is most prevalent seeking to explain lebanon s behavior in the international arena during the 2006 war between hezbollah and israel this book offers a critique of both systemic and sub state factors in determining foreign policy decisions the making of lebanese foreign policy illustrates how systemic theories are limited in terms of explaining foreign policy decisions because they largely ignore the role of internal or sub state factors within lebanon foreign policy is split between the interests of different internal lebanese groups working in alliance with external actors the competing interests of these internal groups compromise the cohesion of the lebanese state and its capacity to promote its own interests above those of the different internal groups the example of lebanon during the 2006 war thus demonstrates the importance of these sub state factors in influencing state behaviour on an international level arguing that a more pluralistic approach is necessary in order to understand the conditions that affect the foreign policy making of the lebanese state this book fills an important gap in the literature on the topic and will be of interest to students of international relations middle east studies and islamic studies amongst others an introduction to civil wars provides a comprehensive overview of the civil wars that have taken place globally since world war ii a discussion of the human and economic costs of civil war is followed by a systematic examination of all aspects of these conflicts civil war patterns types and causes the effect of natural resources conflict duration outcomes and termination peace agreements counterinsurgency terrorism international intervention and post conflict issues author karl derouen jr draws on the latest empirical research and pedagogical features tables figures maps photos a comprehensive bibliography lists of suggested readings and an appendix listing all civil wars since 1946 make the book an especially useful research tool for undergraduates and graduate students in political science and public policy a union list of serials commencing publication after dec 31 1949
