the previous conference in this series amta 2002 took up the theme from research to real users and sought to explore why recent research on data driven machine translation didn't seem to be moving to the marketplace as it turned out the first commercial products of the data driven research movement were just over the horizon and in the intervening two years they have begun to appear in the marketplace at the same time rule based machine translation systems are introducing data driven techniques into the mix in their products machine translation as a software application has a 50 year history there are an increasing number of exciting deployments of mt many of which will be exhibited and discussed at the conference but the scale of commercial use has never approached the estimates of the latent demand in light of this we reversed the question from amta 2002 to look at the next step in the path to commercial success for mt we took user needs as our theme and explored how or whether market requirements are feeding into research programs the transition of research discoveries to practical use involves technical questions that are not as sexy as those that have driven the research community and research funding important product issues such as system customizability computing resource requirements and usability and fitness for particular tasks need to engage the creative energies of all parts of our community especially research as we move machine translation from a niche application to a more pervasive language conversion process these topics were addressed at the conference through the papers contained in these proceedings and even more specifically through several invited presentations and panels
