one million children describes the success for all and roots wings programmes in detail presents the extensive research evaluating them and discusses the implications of this research for policy and practice success for all and roots wings are comprehensive restructuring programmes for primary schools designed to promote the idea that all children can learn the cambridge companion to narrative provides a unique and valuable overview of current approaches to narrative study an international team of experts explores ideas of storytelling and methods of narrative analysis as they have emerged across diverse traditions of inquiry and in connection with a variety of media from film and television to storytelling in the real life contexts of face to face interaction to literary fiction each chapter presents a survey of scholarly approaches to topics such as character dialogue genre or language shows how those approaches can be brought to bear on a relatively well known illustrative example and indicates directions for further research featuring a chapter reviewing definitions of narrative a glossary of key terms and a comprehensive index this is an essential resource for both students and scholars in many fields including language and literature composition and rhetoric creative writing jurisprudence communication and media studies and the social sciences this book investigates the forms and functions of storytelling in everyday conversation it develops a rhetoric of everyday storytelling through an integrated approach to both the internal structure and the contextual integration of narrative passages it aims at a more complete picture of oral narrative through analysis of a wider range of natural data including personal anecdotes told for humor put down stories told for self aggrandizement family stories retold to ratify membership and so on as well as marginal stories and narrative like passages to delineate the boundaries of conversational storytelling and to test the analytical techniques proposed using transcriptions of stories from everyday talk norrick explores disfluencies formulaicity and repetition as teller strategies and listener cues alongside global phenomena such as retelling and narrative macrostructures he also extends his analysis to narrative jokes from conversation and to narrative passages in drama namely shakespeare s romeo juliet and beckett s endgame this book surveys both the part women have played in buddhism historically and what buddhism might become in its post patriarchal future the author completes the buddhist historical record by discussing women usually absent from histories of buddhism and she provides the first feminist analysis of the major concepts found in buddhist religion gross demonstrates that the core teachings of buddhism promote gender equity rather than male dominance despite the often sexist practices found in buddhist institutions throughout history this book introduces david h c read to a new generation through sermons that are not merely elegantly worded and biblically grounded but packed with life experience that included a five year stint as a prisoner of war during world war ii from amongst the almost 1500 sermons that read preached during his ministry in manhattan john mctavish has selected forty enduring messages that show david read justifying time magazine s assessment that read is not merely elegant and literary his words carry authority through his thought runs a strain of deep feeling and faith capable of convincing others common sense tells us that verbal communication should be a central concern both for the study of communication and for the study of language language is the most pervasive means of communication in human societies especially if we consider the huge gamut of communication phenomena where spoken and written language combines with other modalities such as gestures or pictures most communication researchers have to deal with issues of language use in their work classic methods in communication research from content analysis to interviews and questionnaires not to mention the obvious cases of rhetorical analysis and discourse analysis presuppose the understanding of the meaning of spontaneous or elicited verbal productions despite its pervasiveness verbal communication does not currently define one cohesive and distinct subfield within the communication discipline the handbook of verbal communication seeks to address this gap in doing so it draws not only on the communication discipline but also on the rich interdisciplinary research on language and communication that developed over the last fifty years as linguistics interacted with the social sciences and the cognitive sciences the interaction of linguistic research with the social sciences has produced a plethora of approaches to the study of meanings in social context from conversation analysis to critical discourse analysis while cognitive research on verbal communication carried out in cognitive pragmatics as well as in cognitive linguistics has offered insights into the interaction between language inference and persuasion and into cognitive processes such as framing or metaphorical mapping the handbook of verbal communication volume takes into account these two traditions selecting those issues and themes that are most relevant for communication scholars it addresses background matters such as the evolution of human verbal communication and the relationship between verbal and non verbal means of communication and offers an extensive discussion of the explicit and implicit meanings of verbal messages with a focus on emotive and figurative meanings conversation and fundamental types of discourse such as argument and narrative are presented in depth as is the key notion of discourse genre the nature of writing systems as well as the interaction of spoken or written language with non verbal modalities are devoted ample attention different contexts of language use are considered from the mass media and the new media to the organizational contexts cultural and linguistic diversity is addressed with a focus on phenomena such as multilingual communication and translation a key feature of the volume is the coverage of verbal communication quality quality is examined both from a cognitive and from a social perspective it covers topics that range from the cognitive processes underlying deceptive communication to the methods that can be used to assess the quality of texts in an organizational context while many books have been written about basic literacy few offer detailed information on how to plan and carry out a community literacy project fewer still give guidance in tackling the additional barriers of language culture and logistics in developing countries and in treating the local community as an active partner rather than a passive recipient in the literacy process in local literacies theory and practice glenys waters includes these elements and presents a practical guide for developing a literacy program beginning with a discussion of the theories of learning and reading the author provides a detailed description of how to plan and organize a literacy program when the practitioner has little to go on but with knowledge and determination with approximately one half of the book given to the development of instructional methods and materials in reading writing and basic math local literacies will be especially helpful to those doing literacy work in linguistically diverse settings in much of the developing world the reader will quickly discover that this is a book written by a person who has been there and done that waters has spent more than twenty years in australia and papua new guinea both as a practitioner and a consultant in programs of literacy for adults and children this personal experience plus a thorough knowledge of the professional literature makes local literacies a must for the pioneering literacy worker
